MILFORD'S HAT FACTORIES.

One in Insolvency, and the Other Offered for Sale.

MILFORD, Mass., July 3.—The community is considerably agitated over the possibility that the straw manufacturing business, which has given employment to many hands, will not be continued here. Spaulding & Co., who have operated the factory, have offered the plant for sale, together with the good will of the business. The factory has a capacity of two hundred and fifty hats per day, and has employed from two hundred to two hundred and seventy-five hands, with an average of $50,000 a year in wages. Wilkinson & Howes, the only other firm in the business here, is in insolvency, and if no purchaser of the Spaulding factory appears operation in that line in Milford will, it is thought, probably cease altogether.

Always kept in full line. A Worth gown won't look well if worn over a poor corset. If there is a weak spot in the corset, the basque draws; if the stays break over the hips, the skirts hang awry. HIS DAUGHTER DEAD.

Admiral Miller Informed as the Brooklyn Was About to Sail.

SOUTHAMPTON, July 3.—Miss Ellen Miller, only daughter of Rear Admiral Miller, U. S. N., died in London this morning. Miss Miller had been ill ever since she landed, and is believed to have contracted typhoid fever while on the passage across the Atlantic. The news of the death reached the admiral just as United States cruiser Brooklyn, his flagship, was on the point of sailing for home. The admiral landed and took the first train for London. The Brooklyn will not sail today.

Kansas Crops Scorched by Hot Winds.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., July 3.—Reports from central Kansas indicate that hot winds prevailing in that section are causing serious damage to crops. Especially gloomy reports come from Larned and Great Bend. In that section of the state harvest hands were driven from the fields, being unable to cut or stack the grain, and the corn crop, it is reported, has been scorched beyond recovery. Reports from the western and central parts of the state generally indicate that crops are greatly in need of rain.

Convicted of Murder on the Evidence of a Spirit.

RONCEVERTE, W. Va., July 3.—Some time ago the wife of E. S. Shue was found dead in her home. A coroner's jury rendered a verdict of death by heart disease, but neighbors were not satisfied, and the woman's body was exhumed and her neck was found broken. Shue was indicted, convicted and sentenced to the penitentiary for life. The principal direct evidence was that of Shue's mother in law, who testified that her daughter's spirit had come to her at a seance and said Shue had killed her by breaking her neck. All the other evidence was purely circumstantial.

Pana Miners Will Not Strike.

PANA, Ill., July 3.—Secretary Ryan of the United Mine Workers of Illinois has notified the Pana miners that a general strike of the Illinois miners has been demanded by the officers of that organization. Interviews with the employes of the four mines here justify the statement that there will be no strike in Pana. While the men are favorable to labor organizations, they consider that this action will injure the cause of the United Mine Workers.

Boiler Explosion at an Allegheny Mine.

PITTSBURG, Penn., July 3.—Three boilers at Haller, Peck & Co.'s salt works in Allegheny exploded about 8 o'clock this morning. Two men, Andy Pflenger and George Krouse, were killed, and one, John Rut, was badly injured. The explosion wrecked the plant and set fire to the works. The cause of the explosion is not as yet known.

Strike in an Illinois Quarry.

ALTON, Ill., July 3.—The Grafton quarry company has reduced wages from $1.50 to $1.25 a day and the entire quarry force went out on a strike today. The quarry is the biggest industry of the town.

AFTER THE JUBILEE.

London Reluctantly Doffing Her Holiday Garb.

Marked Success of Whitelaw Reid's Special Embassy.

(Special cable letter to the Associated Press. Copyrighted.)

LONDON, July 3.—The jubilee functions are ended, and London is reluctantly doffing its holiday garb. But the undressing apparently takes as long as the dressing. Carpenters are still slowly tearing down the stands. Most of the princes and special envoys have departed.

The special embassy of Hon. Whitelaw Reid ended yesterday, and did so with continued marks of gratitude from the British government for the manner in which the United States has been represented. While Mr. and Mrs. Reid's official task is over, their personal engagements promise to be almost as important and numerous, including attendance at the Savage Club reception today, the Middle Temple dinner, the American society's dinner and Lord and Lady Cavendish-Bentinck's dinner next week. Mr. and Mrs. Reid will remain at Lord Lonsdale's house, and will sail for home at the end of the month.

General Nelson A. Miles, U. S. A., has been rather an embarrassing element in the United States special mission to the British government, as he insisted upon taking more than they intended him to do. The government had provided rooms, servants and a carriage at the Alexandria Hotel for Rear Admiral J. N. Miller, U. S. N., and General Miles, but the invitation was not extended to their wives. General Nelson A. Miles arrived first with his wife and occupied both rooms, leaving Admiral Miller the room the court officials had intended for the servants accompanying the two officers. Admiral Miller thereupon declined to remain at the hotel, and repaired to lodgings in Half Moon street, where his family was installed. The court officials were greatly distressed and wished to take a suite of rooms at the Victoria Hotel for Admiral Miller, but the latter declined.

The Crush at the Chamberlain Reception.

The secretary of state for the colonies, Mr. Joseph Chamberlain, provided royalty with a new sensation Wednesday. Wishing to have an overwhelming social show, Mr. Chamberlain took the late Sir Julian Goldschmidt's big house in Piccadilly and invited two thousand guests to a banquet and reception following it, all of whom apparently accepted, resulting in the greatest crowd London remembers. Inside the house the crush was terrible. Mr. and Mrs. Chamberlain vainly tried to edge their way to the foot of the stairs in order to receive the Prince and Princess of Wales, and Mrs. Chamberlain's chagrin at the failure of their royal highnesses to arrive, owing to the jam in Piccadilly, was very evident, and was made worse by the condolences of many present, who, wishing to go on to the reception of the Earl and Countess of Derby, were absolutely unable to leave the premises, as the continual arrivals for a long time prevented ingress and egress. The Duke and Duchess of York were obliged to make their exit by way of the kitchen and the area steps.

Entertaining the American Bishops.

The United States and Canadian bishops are being royally entertained everywhere. Every bishop has more invitations to hospitality than he can possibly accept, and the same is the case with invitations to preach. The Archbishop of Canterbury received them all most cordially, and influences by the wholesale, it is reported in the press, are being brought to bear in favor of the archbishop's great scheme to obtain the adhesion of all the colonials, and of all Americans if possible, to such an acknowledgment of the Archbishop of Canterbury's headship of the Church of England and its offshoot as to practically permit him, in a large measure, to control the internal affairs of such churches. The idea finds but little favor with the United States bishops, but some of the colonial bishops warmly advocate it. The question is probably too broad a one to be decided offhand.

The Queen Not Blind.

The sensational stories circulated by a New York newspaper regarding Queen Victoria's alleged blindness and her intention to abdicate in favor of the Prince of Wales after the jubilee festivities, which have just reached her by mail, are exciting great derision among the few newspapers which have deigned to notice the cruel and utterly unfounded reports. A high official who is in daily contact with the queen says that the statement to the effect that the queen is almost totally blind is "an absolute untruth." He adds: "For some years past Her Majesty's eyesight has been slowly failing, as is natural at her time of life. But to say that she is afflicted with sudden blindness is absolutely untrue. It is more difficult for her to read fine writing and fine print than was formerly the case; but Her Majesty still reads through two-thirds of all the documents sent to her."

Foreign Attraction at the Theatres.

The jubilee attractions of last week and the warm weather have interfered sadly with the profits of managers, and but few of the theatres can be said to be doing a paying business. Since Monday the Metropolitan houses have been literally invaded by foreign attractions. Besides Madame Bernhardt at the Adelphi, we now have Madame Rejane at the Lyric and Madame Odilon and the Vienna Volkstheatre company at Daly's. Mr. Charles Frohman's "Secret Service" company at the Comedy has been here so long and has been so warmly received, that Mr. Gillette and other members of the company may be said to have already acquired the freedom of dramatic London. It is a curious fact that, except a few musical farces, the London jubilee play bill was distinctively a foreign one.

A meeting has occurred between Madame Nordica and Jean de Reszke, and everything has been satisfactorily explained. It is learned from a private source that Madame Nordica is satisfied that de Reszke is not to be blamed for her non-appearance at the Metropolitan Opera House, New York, last season, and that she knows who really is responsible for her failure to appear.

A dinner is to be given this month at the Grafton Gallery by one hundred representative women, each of whom will invite a distinguished man as her special guest. The dinner is to be followed by a soiree, to which other eminent people will be invited.

SITUATION STILL STRAINED.

Delay in Peace Negotiations Creating Much Apprehension.

CONSTANTINOPLE, July 3.—The delay in the peace negotiations between Greece and Turkey is creating apprehensions, and a strained situation is the result. Everything tends to show that the sultan is desirous of gaining time, either in the hope of a disagreement of the powers or in order to allow the excitement among Mohammedans to calm down before yielding. The powers, however, remain united, and are apparently determined not to yield anything but a strategic rectification of the frontier. The question most discussed in political circles is whether, in the event of the contumacy of Turkey, the powers will proceed to coerce her, and it is not believed they could be brought to act in unison on this point. The prevalent opinion, however, is that the sultan will finally yield.

ATHENS, July 3.—A pessimistic view of the negotiations for peace between Turkey and Greece is taken here, and even the resumption of hostilities in the near future is regarded as possible. It is stated that in such an event King George will take command of the Greek troops.

This Morning's News.

ON THE CURRENCY.

President May Send a Special Message to Congress.

WASHINGTON, July 2.--The question whether the President will send a special message to Congress recommending the creation of a currency commission will be definitely decided next week. The President is strongly inclined at this time to send a special currency message to Congress, regarding himself as in a considerable measure pledged to this course. In fact, it was semi-officially announced at the White House late this afternoon that such a message would be sent to Congress next week, but some of his most influential advisers on financial questions are opposed to a message as impolitic at this time, owing to hostility to a commission on the part of Congress, and the final determination as stated will not be reached until Mr. McKinley's return from Canton.

While a bill for the creation of the commission could be easily passed in the House, where factious' opposition would be unavailable against the operation of a cloture order that would bring it to a vote, such opposition in the Senate might be almost interminable. Several of the silver Senators have openly avowed their unalterable hostility to the creation of a commission.

AGAIN IT IS CORNELL.

Yesterday's Three-Cornered Race Merely a Procession.

POUGHKEEPSIE, July 2.—The record 'varsity race upon the four-mile course - contestants, eight-oared shells from Cornell, Columbia and Pennsylvania; expectations, a breaking of records and a close and exciting contest; result, a fizzle and a procession. Cornell won, with Columbia second, about 11½ lengths to the rear, while Pennsylvania foundered just after passing the two-mile mark. The official time is: Cornell, 20 minutes 47 4-5 seconds; Columbia, 21 minutes 29 2-5 seconds. The time by miles for Cornell: First mile, 5:04 2-5; second mile, 10:51; third mile, 15:46; fourth mile 20:47 4-5.

All of the expectations of those lovers of American sports that by establishing new records Pennsylvania and Columbia would be entitled to demand admission into what promises to be an intercollegiate rowing combination of three colleges, Yale, Harvard and Cornell, have been rudely shattered. The contest on the Hudson this afternoon, which had been heralded as promising a close and exciting finish, and which each college coach declared would be a record-breaking contest, turned out to be the merest sort of a procession, and an apology for a race.

It is true that the water conditions were not favorable to fast time, and that men like Walter Peet and other boating experts admitted it was not a proper time to start a race; but it is also true that, once having started, the chances were certainly about equal for each crew. The lightest crew on the river, and the one less likely to be able to stand the swells caused by the wind blowing against the tide, came out of the contest an easy winner, and only slightly behind the record of Yale last week, when she finished second in the 'varsity race, with all the conditions in her favor. The heaviest crew in the race today, Pennsylvania, found its boat washed full of water before the second mile was reached, and after passing that point was compelled to retire from the contest. The next heaviest crew, Columbia, bravely heralded as a rough-water crew, was so fearful of results from the same cause that it lost many lengths steering in shore.

In some respects the contest was pitiful. Cornell, the winner of two previous contests, the victors over Yale and Harvard, had been led to believe that Pennsylvania and Columbia would put up a harder fight than its contestants in the other races. To the contrary, the Cornell crew rowed over the course in the easiest kind of fashion. Columbia struggled on in the rear, losing length by length while rowing a much quicker stroke than Cornell, and finally, after crossing the line, found themselves almost incapable of any further work. As if to exhibit her prowess and her wonderful husbanded strength, the Cornell coxswain turned his boat around and rowed up a mile and a quarter above the finish to salute poor defeated Pennsylvania, and then returned to the boat house.

On the referee's boat just after Pennsylvania was swamped, Professor Wheeler of Cornell turned to Mr. James Bond of Pennsylvania and said, "Mr. Bond, on behalf of Cornell University I desire to say that Cornell's eight will row Pennsylvania's eight tomorrow if you will accept the offer."

Mr. Bond replied that it was a very courteous thing to do, but that on behalf of Pennsylvania he would have to decline to accept the offer, and that it would be unsportsmanlike for Pennsylvania to allow the Cornell crew to race for the third time within eight days.

President McKinley Off for Canton.

WASHINGTON, July 2.--President McKinley left the city at 7:10 o'clock tonight over the Pennsylvania road for Canton, Ohio, where he will visit his aged mother and take a few days of rest. With him were Mrs. McKinley, Assistant Secretary and Mrs. Day, Mrs. Saxton, who is Mrs. McKinley's aunt, and Miss Mabel McKinley. The party occupied Pullman car Hazelmere, which was attached to the rear of the Western express. Canton will be reached at 10:20 tomorrow morning, and the return to Washington will be on Tuesday.

TO BLOCK THE TARIFF.

Silver Men Threaten to Offer a Sixteen-to-One Amendment.

WASHINGTON, July 2.--The developments in the Senate today indicate that there is no hope of a final vote being taken on the tariff bill until Tuesday or Wednesday of next week, at the earliest. It is true that the Republicans at their caucus last night, and the finance committee this morning, have settled practically all the points which until then remained unagreed upon. Furthermore, Mr. Allison announced on the floor of the Senate this afternoon that all the remaining amendments which the committee had in contemplation would be prepared and printed before the Senate met tomorrow morning. But, notwithstanding these facts, Mr. Allison's request this afternoon for an agreement as to the time of taking the vote was flatly refused by both Mr. Teller and Mr. Jones of Arkansas. Both gentlemen reiterated that they had no intention of delaying the passage of the bill, and declared that their objection to making an agreement now was solely because the Republicans had not yet submitted all their proposed amendments. Mr. White of California even went so far as to assure Mr. Allison that once the latter presented those final amendments there would be little difficulty in agreeing upon an hour for the vote.

But these professions are greatly weakened by the discovery this afternoon that the silver men are preparing a wholly unlooked-for coup. A Southern Democratic Senator, himself an ardent silverite, is authority for the statement that, just as the bill in its complete form is about to be voted on, an amendment will be offered providing for the free and unlimited coinage of silver at the ratio of 16 to 1. This, it is represented, will be offered for the purpose of providing the silver men with a point of vantage from which to advertise anew their theories, and in addition make a final and desperate onslaught on the bill and its framers.

TO CONTROL DELAGOA BAY.

Boer-German Plot Which Has the Sanction of Portugal.

NEW YORK, July 2.--A cable despatch from London to the Sun says: Details of a Boer-German plot to secure control of Delagoa Bay, a Portuguese possession on the east coast of Africa, which would furnish an excellent outlet to the sea for the Transvaal, are given by the Berlin correspondent of the Daily Mail.

He says that Dr. Leyds, the plenipotentiary of the South African republic to the European governments, who is now in Paris, has promoted a syndicate, in which half the funds are contributed by leading German financial houses and most of the remainder by the Transvaal through the National Bank. The syndicate is disguised as a French affair, under the auspices of the Bank of Paris, the Ottoman Bank and the Comptoir d'Escompte, but these have merely a nominal share in the company.

The syndicate, with Portugal's sanction, has bought all the shares of the Mozambique company, to which Portugal is about to grant a new charter, which will include the entire administration of Delagoa Bay, with control of the port customs. The syndicate will pay Portugal a large sum for the charter. The shares of the company were quoted at 13 marks a week ago, but are now valued at 40.

The correspondent adds that, unless Great Britain interposes immediately, a right to the reversion of Delagoa Bay will be absolutely valueless.

After the downfall of the western empire it dwindled to a city of 13,000 inhabitants. Under the popes it was restored and enlarged, but many periods of war and turbulence checked its development. During the last 100 years it was at several different times occupied by the French and on the withdrawal of Napoleon's troops in 1870 was occupied by an Italian army, and its citizens submitted to the authority of the king of united Italy.

1892—Tornadoes, floods and waterspouts wrought terrible destruction in six western states.

1758 George Augustus Viscount Howe killed near Fort Ticonderoga, N. Y. His skeleton was found there in 1859. Young Howe was with the vanguard of the colonial army, led by Major Israel Putnam, and he asked to be one of the first to meet the enemy. Putnam said to him: "If I am killed, the loss will be of little consequence, while your preservation is of importance to the army." The gallant Howe answered: "Putnam, your life is as dear to you as mine is to me. I am determined to go." He was killed at the first fire.

PAYMASTER CORWINE'S FATHER-IN-LAW INDICTED.

T. C. Smith, father-in-law of Paymaster Corwine, U. S. N., was yesterday indicted by the United States grand jury in Brooklyn. The charge is embezzlement, the specification being that Mr. Smith received government moneys in payment of personal debts in settlement of the amount paid on the bond of Paymaster Corwine.

It had been concluded by the defense that when United States Commissioner Morle dismissed the complaint against Mr. Smith a few days ago the government would discontinue further proceedings in the case. The surety company that went on Corwine's bond is said to be interested in the prosecution of Mr. Smith.

LIKE THE PORTER.

Torpedo Boat Dupont Shows Herself a Remarkable Craft.

Torpedo boat Dupont was out under her own steam for the first time yesterday, and her builders are satisfied and the inspectors well pleased with her performance. She left her dock in Bristol about 2:15 o'clock in the afternoon, steamed down the bay over the seven-mile course from Sandy Point to Rose Island, through Newport's inner harbor, and back over the course, never once stopping her engines from the time she left Bristol until she returned, and slowing down only once—when passing through Newport harbor, as compelled by regulations. She had only two boilers in use to warm up her engines, and anthracite coal was used by the green crew. The auxiliary, instead of the main, steam pipes were used.

She started out with a steam pressure of 150 pounds and 160 pounds at the high-pressure cylinders, with natural draught. Under these conditions she made a speed of 18.30 knots over the measured course. On her return the fire rooms were closed, and under light forced draught steam was raised to 180 pounds, with 115 at the engines. At this she made an average of 23 knots.

On returning to Bristol she was put through stopping, starting and turning trials, all of which were most satisfactory. There was no vibration in steam pipes or other parts, action was particularly smooth, and she was handled with great ease. In many respects she showed herself superior to the Porter, and, considering that it was only the second time the engines were under steam, her work was remarkable. She will be hauled out here for final painting next Thursday.

The Herreshoffs made a prior display of the superiority of their work in the forenoon, when the 80-foot yacht Nina, which was launched Monday, and has had only dock trial, was speeded, and with 480 revolutions made a speed of 15.7 knots, exceeding that required by contract—11½ knots.

ENTERTAINMENT IN VARIETY.

The Trinity Cadets gave a very successful entertainment at the guild house on High street last evening, when, in spite of the unpleasant weather, there was a large attendance of the friends of the young soldiers. The program was a good one and had enough of variety to suit everybody. It opened with a sketch, entitled "Won't you play house with me?" in which ten little misses gave in a song a pleasing exemplification of housekeeping. The participants were Ethel Scott, Hilda Shoch, Lulu Gunther, Gertrude Downing, Gertie Patterson, Cora Mallett, May Swanson, Maisie Chase, Abbie Stephenson and Carrie Murphy. This was followed by a song, "A Little Boy Went Walking," by Abbie Stephenson and Carrie Murphy, who are only three years old; songs by Misses Thompson and Wilcox; a Spanish dance by Miss Ethel Bradley; a cornet solo by Master Simpson; a piano selection, "La Somnambula," by Miss Etta Melville; recitations by Mrs. Bowers; an exhibition of the gramophone, and a drill in the manual of arms by the cadets, executed in a manner that showed the care of the drill-master, Lieutenant Colonel Herbert Bliss of the Newport Artillery, and the close attention to his instruction by the cadets. The entertainment was arranged by Mrs. MacDougal, and the accompaniments for the musical numbers were by Miss Melville. The cadets will receive quite an addition to their uniform fund as the result of the entertainment.

INSTALLATION OF OFFICERS.

Last evening the officers-elect of International Union, No. 2, Bricklayers and Masons, were duly installed, after which the members enjoyed a short social, with singing, addresses and refreshments. The officers installed are as follows:

President—M. P. Vaughan.
Vice President—Thomas A. Jennings.
Recording Secretary—J. H. Wilbour.
Financial Secretary—William C. O'Neill.
Corresponding Secretary—William S. Donald.
Treasurer—James Bothnie.
Sergeant at Arms—Cornelius Harrington.

VERDICTS IN COURT CASES.

There was some delay after the brief recess of the common pleas court yesterday, as one juror did not get in until after 2 o'clock. The court was looking over the declaration, which had seventeen "counts" in "trover," and about fifty beside. This is thought to be the largest number of "counts" in any declaration filed here in years. Each item in the bill is put in a separate count. The court charged that if a man, under pretense of buying, gets goods when he does not intend to pay for them, it is a fraud, and the seller may get them back either by action of "trover" or by action of "fraud." In this case both are used. It was not necessary for the jury to read the declaration. The jury was instructed to find a verdict of not guilty on the eighteenth count. All the evidence must be considered as to one issue—whether or not defendant, at the time he made the several purchases, intended to pay for them. Both parties have been represented by the ablest counsel practicing at his bar. Fraud must be proved, as a convincing inference from the facts adduced. It is for the jury to decide what interpretation to put on the facts, and the plaintiff must prove his case in order to get a verdict.

The jury went out at 2:20 and returned a verdict for the plaintiff for $101.18.

Another jury was called, and the case of Henry J. Jones vs. the City Steam Laundry Company was put on trial, Colonel Sheffield appearing for plaintiff and Mr. Ives for defendant. It is brought to recover damages for violating a covenant to pay rent and keep premises (11-18 Mill street) in repair. Jurors were challenged, leaving only ten to serve, and the case proceeded with ten jurors by agreement of counsel, Juror Thurston acting as foreman. Plaintiff claimed that the defendant had entered upon a new year, thereby becoming responsible for the year's rent, but had left the premises, and a number of items for damage or failure to return parts of the real estate were alleged (the charge for an inkstand was withdrawn). The rent was at the rate of $67 a month. Defendant pleaded "non est factum," performance and setoff. Colonel Sheffield introduced a certificate of the incorporation of defendant.

The bank cases against Catherine Galvin, executrix, were assigned for Tuesday.

The case of Jones vs. City Steam Laundry Company proceeded this morning, Judge Douglas presiding. The jury took the case, was out about an hour and returned with a verdict, assessing damages in favor of plaintiff at $110.50.

The court at once rose, adjourning at 12:29 to Tuesday at 5:30 a. m.

MY SCHOOLROOM.

I have closed my books and hidden my slate
And thrown my satchel across the gate,
My school is out for a season of rest,
And now for the schoolroom I love the best.

My schoolroom lies on the meadow wide,
Where under the clover the sunbeams hide,
Where the long vines cling to the mossy bars,
And the daisies twinkle like fallen stars;

Where clusters of buttercups gild the scene,
Like showers of gold dust thrown over the green,
And the wind's flying footsteps are traced, as they pass,
By the dance of the sorrel and dip of the grass.

My lessons are written in clouds and trees,
And no one whispers, except the breeze,
Which sometimes blows, from a secret place,
A stray, sweet blossom against my face.

My schoolbell rings in the rippling stream,
Which hides itself, like a schoolboy's dream,
Under the shadow and out of sight,
But laughing still for its own delight.

My schoolmates there are the birds and bees,
And the saucy squirrel, more dull than these,
For he only learns, in all the weeks,
How many chestnuts will fill his cheeks.

My teacher is patient, and never yet
A lesson of hers did I once forget,
For wonderful lore do her lips impart,
And all her lessons are learned by heart.

O, come! O, come! or we shall be late,
And Autumn will fasten the golden gate.

Bobby—Say, did you ever tie a pack of firecrackers to a dog's tail?

Percy—No, sir, I didn't. My mamma taught me to be kind to animals.

Bobby—Huh! What fun do you have, then?

Percy—Oh, I just set mine off behind girls.—[Truth.

"When I get to be a man," said the boy who has a good memory for phrases, "I'm going to strive to cultivate an unselfish nature."

"That's right," replied his father. "How are you going to go about it?"

"Well, in the first place, if I have any little boys I'll let them shoot their own fireworks instead of telling them they must let me do it for fear they will hurt themselves."

Daughter of the Revolution—My son, this is the anniversary of that glorious day when your forefathers declared us free, and fought and died that we might enjoy the blessings of liberty.

Her youngest (bitterly)—I'm darn glad they got killed, I am!

Daughter of the Revolution—Why, Bobby?

Her youngest—I am. 'Cause papa's used up most o' my firecrackers, now, showin' me how not to hurt myself.—[Puck.

PERSONALS.

....The latest news received from Bonn of the health of the artist Munkacsy is anything but re-assuring. Although he derived great benefit at first from his visit to the Rhine, his condition now has become considerably worse, and very faint hopes of his recovery are entertained. He is unable to do any work, and his doctors have forbidden him to attend to any business matters.

....The trustees of Colby University have accepted the resignation of Dr. William A. Rogers, who has filled the chair of physics for the past ten years, and F. E. Hull, Ph. D., has been appointed to the vacancy. He is a graduate of Toronto University, and for the last three years has been taking a post-graduate course at the University of Chicago.

....The Father of the British navy, Admiral of the Fleet Hon. Sir Henry Keppel, has just celebrated his eighty-eighth birthday. Despite his advanced age, he still remains on the active list, and is eighteen years older than Lord John Hay, who is next in seniority. Sir Henry Keppel has had a brilliant service career, which dates back to the war between the East India Company and the Rajah of Nanning, when he acted as lieutenant of the Magicienne at the blockade of Mooran.

....Ferdinand Rodliff completed Monday last the seventieth year of his employment in the Hamilton Mills at Lowell, Mass., and the remarkable, if not unparalleled, anniversary was celebrated fittingly by his co-workers and the management. He began in a mill in Seekonk, Mass., his native town, when seven years of age, and worked from 5 in the morning until 7 at night for fifty cents a day. He was appointed overseer of spinning when seventeen years of age. At twenty he was general overseer of a mill in Canton, Mass. At twenty-one he entered the employ of the Hamilton Manufacturing Company, and he now holds the position of assistant superintendent there.

Our daily life is made possible only by the fact that we know so little of our neighbors. There are many things of which we are better ignorant right up to the end.—["The Sowers."

ARE THEY AFRAID?

It looks very much as if the great powers of Europe were afraid to proceed in the carrying out of their program in relation to Turkey and Greece. At the beginning of the war they proposed to dictate terms to the belligerents, and did so to a considerable degree. They swooped down on little Greece when her forces occupied Crete, and would not permit King George's warships to proceed against his enemies and do the work for which they were intended, and for which they appeared to be competent. It was with reluctance that Greece submitted to these demands of the powers, and so finally lost.

But now when the powers undertake to curb the exactions and impulses of the sultan, and he refuses to comply with their wishes, these same great nations hesitate to enforce their demands. They gave out in advance that neither of the contending parties should be permitted to make any territorial acquisitions as the result of the war and still stand pledged to prevent it. But, in spite of all their protestations, the Turks still hold on to Thessaly and are freely expressing their purpose not to let go, even at the demand of their late allies.

As no one believes that the powers desire the dismemberment of Greece in this way, there is but one conclusion to be reached, and that is that the allied nations are afraid to proceed in carrying out their announced purposes. The Boston Advertiser states the case in this wise: "Probably an exact and truthful answer to this question would be a confession that the European powers are far more afraid of Turkey than they were six months ago. The European diplomats have been proceeding cautiously in bringing pressure upon the sultan, and this caution has been induced largely by the fear that the Turkish ruler might reach a point where he would refuse to grant any further demand on the part of the powers. Consequently, that potentate has been treated rather tenderly by the representatives of the great European powers. This diplomacy seems to have had some effect after all. At least semi-official announcements are being made in Europe at this time to the effect that the great powers have practically succeeded in arranging satisfactory terms of peace between Greece and Turkey. Possibly the statement is reliable. The most skillful diplomats of Europe have been working for several weeks upon the sultan, and surely their work must have had some effect. At the same time it is noteworthy that the great powers that were so prompt to bully little Greece have been bullied in turn by the lately despised sultan."

OKLAHOMA.

They are beginning to talk seriously of making over Oklahoma into a state, and thus placing it on a level with the other states of the Union. The Atlanta Journal makes a strong plea for the admission of Oklahoma as a state, and in the course of its remarks declares that "no state that has been admitted to the Union since the original thirteen had at the time of its admission as many people as are now in Oklahoma." This statement is not true, if the governor of that territory is to be believed. That official placed the population of Oklahoma at 275,587 at the beginning of 1897, and it is not likely that he underestimated the figures. But Maine, which was admitted in 1820, had a population of 298,269, and Wisconsin, which was admitted in 1848, had in 1850 a population of 305,391. Another instance of the same kind was West Virginia, which was created a state during the rebellion, and in 1870 had a population of 442,014.

This all sounds very well, but when it is called to mind that this boasted population is largely nomadic, and ready to move on at short notice, that it is made up of the rougher elements of society, with but slight respect for law and order, and that it is neither compact nor homogeneous, it is easily to be seen that there should be no haste in statehood proceedings. We have not the slightest assurance that the population will be as large ten years hence as it is now, nor that the experience of Nevada will not be repeated if we proceed at this time. Oklahoma can well wait awhile longer, and the country cannot afford to proceed in the direction indicated.

And yet, if the party exigencies seem to demand it, even in a single election, the politicians will surely hurry the thing along, as they did in the case of Nevada, Idaho, Montana and some other Western settlements before the time. It was politics only that brought several of these states into the Union, and that has put the mining camp largely in control of the upper branch of Congress, making it a hotbed of financial and socialistic delusions of the most threatening character.

THE NEW LIBRARIAN AT WASHINGTON.

Some of the New York papers are freely criticising the President for having appointed John Russell Young as the new librarian to Congress. They point to the fact that he has no practical acquaintance with the details of the business, and must, for the present at least, be a mere figurehead of that institution, while Mr. Spofford gives practical direction to affairs.

But the Washington Star comes to the support of the appointee by saying that the President's selection of Mr. Young commends itself to approval both by those who know the requirements of the position and by those who know the capacities of this able journalist and diplomat. Mr. Young is a man of wide experience in many lines of work, both public and private. He possesses an intimate acquaintance with national affairs, and has an insight as well into the ways of the Old World. He has traveled extensively, has read voluminously, has written brilliantly and wisely, and is in addition a man of business talents such as the soon to be expanded duties of the librarian demand. His appointment therefore is a rarely happy choice. The President might have looked long and closely among a multitude of possibilities without hitting upon a man so well adapted in every way to the peculiarly trying task that he is called upon to administer. The library is about to pass into a new stage of development, and is faced with unlimited outlots for expansion.

When the last Cuban insurrection was at its height President Grant demanded that Spain should conduct her military operations "in a manner more in accordance with the humane and Christian spirit of the age"—and Spain promptly took the hint. One of our exchanges is of the opinion that President McKinley might at least do as much as that, in seeming forgetfulness that our government has been doing the selfsame thing these two or three past years. It may be well, however, to say it again, and at the same time speak a little louder.

Senator Wellington of Maryland is making himself as obnoxious, politically and personally, as ever did Tillman, Peffer or any one else who has had a place in the body to which he unfortunately belongs. He is for the spoils first and last and all the time, and his speech in defense of his course yesterday was one of the most humiliating episodes that ever occurred in that honorable body.

It is expected that the new tariff bill may pass next week and that at the same time not far from 150,000 men in Pennsylvania and Ohio will be thrown out of work through the effort of the trusts to reduce wages. The workingmen say they want to share in the good times already come or declared to be coming.

And so Cornell has won again, and the defeated crews and their friends are busying themselves in explaining how it came about. It looks at this distance as though the case was clear and the problem easily solved. The Cornells were, and are, evidently, the best rowers.

Newport was treated to gentle showers yesterday, but not so some of the Connecticut towns and cities. The accounts go to show that the storms were very severe and destructive at several points and that much damage was the result.

The anti-trust proposition is not allowed a place in the Senate tariff bill, which is from first to last pro-trust in its nature.

Lightning struck the tall flag-staff on Grant's tomb yesterday, and so damaged it that it may have to be removed.

The Popocratic silver dollar is now worth but forty-seven cents, and the tendency is still downward.

Monday is the day we celebrate. Long may the flag of the Union wave!

PROBLEMS OF THE MODERN MAN.

"This one thing I do," said Paul of Tarsus, and the words are a key to his life. Like all the great leaders and reformers of the past, he left his mark on the world because of his singleness of purpose. He tried to do only one thing, but to do that one thing supremely well. It is not, however, our intention here to enlarge on this well-worn theme, but to call attention to the fact that the modern actor in life's drama is called upon to do many things supremely well. Life is no longer the simple thing it was in the days of old. Its relations have become indefinitely multiplied and its outlook enormously expanded. Civilization is getting to be a more intricately complex and enigmatical thing every year. The modern man who sets out to make the world better, or at least to do his duty to himself and his fellow-men, cannot say with the apostle, "This one thing I do." He is obliged to throw himself into many forms of effort and activity, each one of which implies certain duties and obligations. And as he looks out on the great sum of things included in modern life, in which he is to take his place as a vital force, if he is true to all the obligations that rest upon him the keyword of his life will be, "These many things must I do."

It is this many-sidedness of life today that gives so much concern to good and earnest men. The busy loom of civilization is producing more than men can assimilate to their uses. We speak glibly of present-day tendencies, and stacks of books are written to show just what they are, yet the only result is often to darken counsel. We somehow feel that we are in an age of progress; but in the great swirl of things the signs of progress to which we point are often swept away from view, and the keenest analyst of tendencies cannot be sure what is to be the final outcome of it all. The civilization in which we find ourselves is like a great battle. Confused cries and sounds whose meaning we do not understand are borne to our ears, and the smoke of the conflict envelops us like a thick cloud, hiding from us alike both friend and foe. That is modern life, a puzzle of cross purposes in which even the Creator seems to be entangled in the meshes of His own creation. The intellectual and material progress of the world has become a sort of Frankenstein that threatens to enslave its creators. No age has been inspired by nobler ideals or animated by loftier purposes. But the image of gold whose head pierces the clouds is found to have feet of clay; and the clear-sighted vision of the wise may often discern a possible shipwreck of hope at the end of many tendencies that make for progress and truth.

There is civilization itself, for instance, the age-long struggle of man to lift himself up to a higher plane of being and a diviner ideal of life. No thought today holds a larger place in the minds of men than this epic war of man against his lower self, inspired, as we must believe it to be, by all that is best and noblest in his nature. Yet civilization has its dark and seamy side, as we all know. It is satanic as well as godlike. It is a tragedy of evil no less than an epic of goodness. It sweeps along in its mighty current not only the shining grains of gold, but the scum and the mud as well. It is not always an improvement on Nature; for Nature only makes men beasts, but civilization sometimes turns them into satyrs. Nor does it always sound the clear note of moral progress which we believe most truly expresses its character. At times, instead of lighting the beacon fires of progress, it fans into new life the fires of some lurid Gehenna that we had thought long ago cold and dead, and after the sweat and blood of uncounted years we may suddenly stand face to face with anarchy and revolution. Civilization, indeed, is often like Saturn: it devours its own children. Its moving impulses are not all divine. The loom of civilization cannot yet produce the cloth of gold. Across the golden threads of its warp are thrown the earth-woven threads of evil by the shuttle of circumstance; and so until the millennium comes motley's the wear for man.

Yet there is no reason for discouragement in all this. Hope still remains in the Pandora box that man has opened. Even out of its mistakes the race will finally carve its temple of truth. It will learn to analyze its tendencies and coordinate its desires. It will gradually slough off its erroneous thinking, and overcome what degrades it by conquering what exalts it.—[New York Tribune.

SHOOTING A RHINOCEROS.

As I came round a bush I saw at the bottom of a kind of natural alley in the forest, framed in like a picture by the trees, a massive, old, female rhinoceros. She was facing me, and standing half in sunshine, half in shadow. From a bush protruded the hind quarters of another. Signing to the Somalis to keep back, I instantly sat down and "drew a bead" upon her chest. The distance was about seventy yards, and, although the wind was adverse to her and we had made no noise, she must have seen us like moving shadows among the trees, and was evidently full of suspicion and distrust.

If I ever took careful aim it was at that moment, and under cover of the smoke I shifted my position as the rhinoceros came charging down upon us, giving three or four sharp whiffs like jets of steam, evidently with the intention of clearing the enemy away from the rear before making her escape toward the front against the wind. Having, as she supposed, effected this manoeuvre—a very usual one on the part of the rhinoceros—she swerved off, and the two broke away across the forest, crash after crash, dying away in the distance, marking their course as they receded. On perceiving the rhinoceros go off apparently uninjured, my Somalis gave full vent to their disappointment, making extravagant gestures, and using what sounded like bad language, yet still in half-whispers, as they knew instinctively that the animals might not have gone far, after all, especially if the one I had fired at had really received a mortal wound.

The tracks we now followed were deep holes and furrows imprinted by the animals at full speed. We had not gone far before I again saw the larger of the two rhinoceroses standing broadside on, and quite motionless, under a bush which concealed the head. Giving my three Somalis to understand that they must remain quiet, I aimed once more at the animal's shoulder, taking care that no twig or branch was in the line of fire, knowing how easily a bullet may become deflected. My shot was followed by a couple of short, angry snorts, the stamp of heavy feet and an appalling crashing, which advanced and then swept round toward the left. Another cautious advance on our part, and not far off I saw, near the centre of an open space, the smaller of the two rhinoceroses; but not the larger one.

A shot delivered standing from the shoulder was followed by two shrill squeaks, as the animal tottered a few paces and fell over on its side—a sound most disproportionate to the size and bulk of so large a creature, but which I instantly recognized, from Sir Samuel Baker's description, as the death-cry of the rhinoceros; and the hearing of it filled me with a hunter's joy. While I was reloading the Somalis had crept forward with their spears, relying upon their own agility in evading any charge delivered by the larger one, which I knew must surely be somewhere near at hand. After peering over a low bush they executed a war-dance upon the ground beyond, for there were the two rhinoceroses lying stone dead almost side by side. My Somalis gave way to shouts and exuberant mirth; they were transformed from scowling fiends, soured by the white man's folly, into radiant brown angels, and I allowed them to stroke my face and pat me on the back without a reprimand.—[H. W. Seton-Karr, in July Century.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, July 3, 8 A. M. For New England—Fair tonight; probably showers Sunday night; slightly warmer Sunday; variable winds, becoming southerly.

FOR BOSTON AND VICINITY.

BOSTON, July 3, 8 A. M. For Boston and vicinity—Fair tonight; Sunday fair, except that showers are possible at night; warmer Sunday; variable winds.

WEATHER CONDITIONS.

The storm in the Northwest has become active and extensive, with a minimum barometric pressure of 29.10 inches in the upper valleys. Rain has occurred in all districts west of the Lake regions and north of Kansas, numerous thunder showers being reported. Duluth, Minn., has had over four inches rainfall up to this morning. The storm has not yet greatly affected the lake regions, although cloudiness is increasing. The cloudiness on the New England coast this morning is due to local causes, and not to the storm in the West. The warm wave continues to be the chief feature. Extreme heat is reported throughout the interior of the country. The 80-degree line of temperature this morning extends as far north as Green Bay, Wis., and includes the central and lower Mississippi valley, the West Gulf coast and most of the South Atlantic states. Morning temperatures of 80 so far north indicate the severity of the hot wave, which is moving slowly eastward. The mercury has fallen decidedly in the Northwest, registering about 50 in Montana. New England weather is fair and clear, except on the coast. The temperature is cold as compared with other parts of the country, but warmer weather is looked for.

FINANCIAL.

NEW YORK, July 3, Wall Street—The stock market opened heavy, with Atchison at 12¾, Sugar at 128, Tobacco at 76, Chicago Gas at 91¼, Burlington at 81¼, Rock Island at 74½, St. Paul at 85¼, Northwestern at 117, Louisville at 50¾, Western Union at 81¾, Leather preferred at 60¾, Manhattan at 91¼, Missouri Pacific at 19¼ and New Jersey Central at 84¼.

10—The stock market opened with slight losses in the railways and a generally heavy tone throughout. Some heavy losses were shown in the specialties, and Tennessee Coal and Iron fell 1½ on account of labor troubles. The international shares were all off in sympathy with London. St. Paul, however, received some support at the low level, on account of the large earnings report for the four weeks in June. Sugar and Chicago Gas were well held at yesterday's close.

11—Tobacco was the feature of the market, and on further liberal offerings receded to 73¼, as compared with 77, last night's close. The break was attributed to the liquidation of speculative holdings. Trading in the balance of the list was in small volume, but marked depression prevailed.

Closing—Money on call, easy, at 1½ @ 1¾ per cent; prime mercantile paper, 3 @ 4 per cent; sterling exchange, easy, with actual business in bankers' bills at $4.86¾ @ 87 for demand, and at $4.85 @ 86 for sixty days; posted rates, $4.86½ @ 87½, and $4.88 @ ½; commercial bills, $4.85; bar silver, 60; Mexican dollars, 47; government bonds, firm; state bonds, dull; railroad bonds, firm. Tobacco closed notably weak and active, rallying but feebly from the low point. The decline in Tennessee Coal and Iron reached 2½. The market otherwise was dull and weak throughout, the declines extending to a point in Rock Island, Reading common and first preferred, and to fractional amounts in most other stocks. The closing was weak and at the low point for most shares, but showing slight rallies in a few. Total sales today, 159,000 shares.

NEW YORK, July 3.—The weekly bank statement shows the following changes: Reserve, decrease, $7,851,275; loans, increase, $11,025,500; specie, increase, $96,400; legal tenders, decrease, $5,978,400; deposits, increase, $7,889,100; circulation, decrease, $80,700. The banks now hold $11,-584,875 in excess of the requirements of the twenty-five per cent rule.

New Train Service Between Newport and Worcester.

On Sunday, June 20th, when the summer time schedules of the Old Colony System went into effect, a new train service was inaugurated between Newport, Fall River, the Providence River Shore Resorts and points on the Worcester Division of the Old Colony System, provision being made for the running of several through trains daily between these sections, via the Warren & Bristol Branch, Fox Point and Valley Falls, Blackstone being the northern terminus of the through trains, at which point close connection is made with trains to and from Worcester, making the service complete between the northern and southern cities. By this route no entry into the main station at Providence is made, the trains running no nearer to that station than East Providence, and the run is direct and continuous between Newport and Blackstone, and virtually Worcester. This service commends itself to every traveler through these sections.

YESTERDAY'S RACE.

Referee Reynolds Answers Criticisms Regarding the Start.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., July 3.—The great intercollegiate regatta of 1897 has passed into history, and this morning the town began to settle down to its normal state, citizens and college men alike regretting that the last race in the series resulted so unsatisfactorily.

Much indignation was expressed by the local committee today because of the harsh criticisms that were published this morning of the manner by which the race was conducted. Harris S. Reynolds, the referee, who started the race at 7:19 p. m., after several postponements, has been widely criticised because he did not wait longer. This morning Mr. Reynolds made the following statement: "At 6:30 the three judges signified that they were satisfied with the alignment of their boats, but came to the conclusion that the water was too rough to start them. Soon afterward Columbia's representative demanded that the race be started immediately. The Cornell men said nothing, but Pennsylvania's representative, Mr. Bond, protested. Fifteen minutes later he agreed to a start, and when finally I got the boats off it was with the full consent of the judges. After the race they exonerated me completely, and said that I was no more to blame for starting the boats than they were for giving the word."

Andrew O'Dea, the Wisconsin coach, who backed the Quakers against Columbia with his money, says that after the first half-mile the crew forgot form, training and everything else, and simply settled into a go-as-you-please pace, which in smoother water would have probably caused them to beat Columbia, but not Cornell. The exodus of the crews began at 6:10 this morning.

SENATOR WOLCOTT IN LONDON.

Tentative Arrangement with France Reached by the Commission.

LONDON, July 3.—Senator Edward O. Wolcott, of the United States monetary commission, has arrived here from Paris. He spent the whole day in making arrangements for interviews with different British officials, which will be held after the arrival here, Monday, of the other two members of the commission, ex-Vice President Stevenson and General Charles J. Paine of Massachusetts. The Senator said it was manifestly improper to discuss the results of the mission, but a representative of the Associated Press learns that a tentative arrangement with France has been reached, the nature and details of which are carefully guarded.

GREAT INCOHONEE DANIELS HERE.

Last evening Hon. R. T. Daniels of Griffin, Ga., the great incohonee of the Improved Order of Red Men, arrived in town as guest of James H. Barney, tocakan of the Great Council, who has been acting as personal escort of the big Indian during his wanderings through Massachusetts since Tuesday. His visit here is the only official cognizance he has taken of this reservation during this tour, and it is the second time Newport has been honored by a white chief.

Through the kindness of Aquidneck Encampment, Weenat Shassit tribe was enabled to have the hall for a special session. A good-sized gathering was present, and Judge Daniels spoke on the order, eloquently and instructively, for an hour. There were a few other speeches and an adjournment of the officers and a few members to Warren Post hall, where the proprietor of "The Allen" served a well-arranged spread. More speeches were in order, and the gathering broke up about midnight. Today Judge Daniels is taking in the sights of the city, and will begin his homeward journey tonight. The Great Council of Rhode Island was invited to be present at last night's proceedings, but the members were conspicuous by their absence.

Cereal Coffee Drinkers BEWARE!

If you have been deceived and tried one of the cheap bran substitutes now on the market, claiming to be the original and to have great food value, and you get a pound of poorly roasted bran for your 25c. and a poor, weak, sickish drink (what can you expect from bran), don't be discouraged but try GRAIN-O. It is made from solid grain, nicely browned and 2 pounds for 25c. Grain-O takes the place of coffee at ¼ the price. Get a package of your grocer today.

FOR THE FOURTH.

The Way in Which Newport Will Celebrate Independence Day.

Tomorrow will be the Fourth of July, the one hundred and twenty-first anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of American Independence. While the secular observance of the holiday will take place Monday, the occasion will be recognized in many of the churches tomorrow, the pastors preaching sermons on patriotic themes, and in some instances the services having somewhat of a patriotic character.

At Trinity Church at 5 o'clock Sunday afternoon the Rhode Island Society of the Cincinnati will hold a commemorative service of a special form, approved by Bishop Clark. The members of the Cincinnati have invited the Rhode Island Sons of the Revolution, the Newport Artillery and the Rhode Island Colonial Dames to attend the services, and a distinguished congregation is expected to be present. The service will be conducted by Rev. George J. Magill, D. D., rector of the church, and Rev. Frank Landon Humphreys, S. T. D., Mus. D., of the New Jersey Cincinnati, general chaplain of the Society of the Cincinnati; assisted by Rev. Alva E. Carpenter, S. T. D., rector of St. Mark's Church, Warren; Rev. Emery H. Porter, rector of Emmanuel Church; Rev. E. L. Buckey, rector of St. John's Church; Rev. Herbert E. Bowers, LL. D., assistant minister of Trinity Church, and Rev. Henry Barton Chapin, D. D., Ph. D., chaplain of the Society of the Cincinnati in the State of Rhode Island and Providence Plantations. Rev. Dr. Frank Landon Humphreys, canon of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, New York, will preach the sermon.

The General Celebration.

The program for the general celebration of the day, Monday, includes the following:

6 A. M.—Firing of national salute by Newport Artillery. Ringing of church bells for half an hour.

10 A. M.—Rowing race in the harbor for a silver cup offered by Mr. F. P. Garrettson.

10 A. M.—Band concert and ball game between the Crescents and Volunteers on the Third street lot.

2 P. M.—Boat race, open to all Newport boats, under the auspices of the Newport Yacht Club.

2 P. M.—Ball game between the Volunteers and Senators at the Polo lot.

4:30 to 6 P. M.—Band concert on Touro Park.

6 P. M.—Ringing of bells for half an hour.

6:30 P. M.—National salute by the Newport Artillery.

7:45 to 9:45 P. M.—Band concert at Easton's beach, fireworks display beginning at 8 o'clock.

One of the leading attractions of the day will be the base ball game at Freebody Park between the Newports and Pawtuckets, beginning at 4 o'clock.

The Cincinnati's Observance of the Day.

Monday morning the Society of the Cincinnati will hold its annual meeting, according to law, in the senate chamber of the State House.

It is understood a number of applications for hereditary membership will be acted on, including that of the Count d'Ollone, lieutenant Twenty-seventh Regiment Dragoons, French army, whose father, the late hereditary member, died last December. This membership not only represents M. le Marechal de Camp, le Comte d'Ollone, the original member, who served in Rhode Island in 1780 under Lieutenant General Count de Rochambeau, but also that officer's uncle, Lieutenant General Baron de Viomenil, who was also an original member.

By the decease, last month, of the vice president of the society, Hon. Henry Edward Turner, M. D., in his 81st year, a successor will have to be chosen.

The afternoon public commemorative services in representatives hall, State House, at 3 o'clock, to which the public is invited, is an attempt to return to earlier noteworthy commemorations. Hon. Nathanael Greene, M. D., LL. D., president of the society, will preside. Prayer will be offered by Rev. Henry Barton Chapin, D. D., Ph. D., chaplain of the Rhode Island society; opening remarks will be made by Hon. Asa Bird Gardiner, LL. D., secretary-general of the Cincinnati; the Declaration of Independence will be read by Hon. James M. Varnum, and "The Sword of Bunker Hill" will be sung by Mr. Augustus Franklin Arnold, accompaniment by Mr. Albert Ross Parsons, president of the American College of Musicians. The address will be by Mr. John Austin Stevens, on "Rhode Island in the Revolution." The exercises will conclude with the singing of "America," and the benediction.

In the evening there will be the annual banquet of the society at the Ocean House, at which ex-Governor Lippitt, Rear Admiral George E. Belknap, Rev. Dr. Magill, Rev. Dr. Humphreys, Hon. Amos Perry, John Austin Stevens and others will respond to the patriotic toasts, which the society now always selects from those used at its dinners when the Continental officers of the Revolution were members.

Usually, in years past, the society has met on alternate years in Providence or Newport, but the advanced age of its venerable president, Hon. Nathanael Greene, M. D., LL. D., now in his eighty-seventh year, makes it necessary to meet near his residence.

Third Class—Jerboa, Kitchie and Savage, 21; Shamrock, Michael Foley, 23; Psyche, J. E. Watson, 20; Niobrara, J. H. Scannevin, 7; Guide, E. A. Hassard, 22.

Fourth class—Truant, Bryer Brothers, 4; Tarantula, John Richardson, 15; F. J. D., lte syndicate, 13; Solid Comfort, W. A. Wright, 19; Vesper, Charles S. Plummer, 2; Norman, A. B. Sayer, 12; Shadow, A. H. Janes, 9; Cora Ethel, J. H. Hilton, 44; J. H. P., George S. Slocum, 11.

The race will be sailed under the regular time allowances of the Newport Yacht Club, and for crews the boats will be allowed one man for each five feet and fraction thereof in length. The preparatory gun will be fired at 2 o'clock, the starting gun for the first class five minutes later, and for the successive classes at similar intervals. The course will be about twelve miles, twice over a six-mile course, to be announced by the judges in accordance with the direction of the wind. All protests must be made in writing to the judges.

The Rowing Race.

Four boat crews are entered for the silver cup offered by Mr. F. P. Garrettson for twelve-oared working cutters, and are to be ready at the starting point, in the inner harbor, an imaginary line drawn from the flag-staff on the Torpedo Station. The course will be north to four buoys, one for each boat, anchored on Fort Greene, and thence to the starting point, a distance of about one and a half statute miles. Lieutenant Commander McLean of the Torpedo Station will act as referee; Mayor Boyle, Postmaster Young and Mr. O. H. P. Belmont will fill the positions of judges, while Lieutenant Greble of Fort Adams will hold the watch. All boats, big and little, should keep off the course and give the racers a fair show.

The bank and public offices will be closed during the day, the postoffice will observe the usual holiday hours, with one carrier delivery, and business will be generally suspended.

—The Tiverton police gathered in a party of Fall River visitors in that town last night, and this morning they were shipped to the state workhouse for six months each. Kimball, Mrs. Thomas Dunnell, Boston.

—Frank W. Gouth has been appointed receiver in supplementary proceedings for W. Clark Noble, sculptor, at 111 West Eighteenth street, New York, on the application of the King-Mclzel Company. Mr. Noble is working under an arrangement with the Gorham Manufacturing Company. There is due him $5,000 from the Church of the Incarnation, but he is under the impression that the money belongs to the Gorham company.

NEWS FROM INDIA DISQUIETING.

Mohammedans Gathering and Further Outbreaks Feared.

CALCUTTA, July 3.—The news from Chitpore is again disquieting. Hundreds of Mohammedans are congregating to pray in the mosque where the original dispute arose which led to the disturbances of Wednesday and Thursday. The rioting, as already cabled, grew out of the growing practice of Mohammedans of seizing and refusing to pay rent for certain so-called mosques, built, contrary to the tenets of the Mohammedan religion, on ground belonging to infidels. The demolition of a mud-hut, so-called a mosque, led to the outbreak. There is a strong feeling in favor of making an imposing display of military force, and it is suggested that the authorities should parade all the troops of the neighborhood through the disaffected centres.

GROWING IN STRENGTH.

President Andrews's Observations of Bi-metallism Abroad.

DENVER, Col., July 3.—The Rocky Mountain News prints the following telegram from President Andrews of Brown University in answer to a query as to his observations while abroad of the growth of bi-metallic sentiment:

"PROVIDENCE, R. I., July 2.—Owing to the manifest strength of the bi-metallic interest in America, there is actually considerable prospect that France will agree beforehand to open her mints to silver. If we re-open ours, even without such an agreement, France is certain to follow the United States. In case France and the United States proceed, or either alone, Great Britain will heartily co-operate to the fullest possible extent short of coining full tender silver at London, the India mints will re-open, the Bank of England will lay in a silver reserve, and perhaps half-sovereigns be withdrawn in favor of silver certificates. Further than this England will not go. European bi-metallists nearly all think American initiative the sure way to international bi-metallism."

BEER WAGON AND ELECTRIC CAR.

Several Persons Injured in a Collision in the Streets of Boston.

BOSTON, July 3.—A collision between a brewery wagon and an electric car on Northampton street this morning resulted in injury to three persons. They are: James B. Driscoll, twelve years old, living at 7 Michigan avenue; broken leg. John Hewing, driver of team, 217 Everett street; internal injuries. Motorman W. F. Griffin: badly bruised and severely shaken.

The accident occurred at the corner of Fellows and Northampton streets. The team was loaded with beer, and was crossing the tracks when the electric car came down the street, striking the wagon and disposing the contents of the team all over the street. Hewing, the driver, was thrown from his team and picked up unconscious, and Driscoll was picked up close by. Motorman Griffin's injuries were attended to, and he was taken to his home. Several passengers were injured, but were able to proceed to their homes.

The Fourth in Mexico City.

MEXICO CITY, July 3.—American residents here will celebrate the Fourth of July in various ways, the most notable event being a ball, to be given on the handsome premises of the American Club Saturday evening, to which President Diaz and his cabinet, members of the diplomatic corps and leading people have been invited.

Ex-Governor Evans of Colorado Dying.

DENVER, Col., July 3.—John Evans, formerly governor of Colorado and one of the leading public men of the West, is dying at his home in this city. He has been an invalid for the past two years, during which time he has been confined to the house. The governor was eighty-three years old last March.

A Providence Pension.

WASHINGTON, July 3.—Original—Frank O. Sawyer, Providence.

MUNICIPAL GOVERNMENT WITHOUT TAXATION.

The city of Glasgow, Scotland, is in the fortunate position of being able to pay all the expenses of the city government out of the revenue derived from its public improvements—a state of things which has earned for this city the title to be called the most advanced and best-governed city in the world. The details regarding the system employed by the municipal authorities are given in a letter from Mr. Joseph Asbury Johnson, in the Morning Call, of San Francisco, from which it appears that the progress of improvement of the city dates from the year 1854, when a number of philanthropic citizens formed an association for the improvement of the condition of the slum population. This was practically the beginning of a reform movement which ultimately resulted in an act of Parliament empowering the city corporation to carry out the work which philanthropy and private effort had failed to accomplish. It is claimed that at this time the condition of the poor in the city was worse than in any other of the cities of Great Britain. On June 11 occurred the thirty-first anniversary of the passage by the British Parliament of the Glasgow improvement trust act. The measure has worked so well that today the slum districts are practically eradicated. The city condemned the wretched tenements and erected in their place the very best form of modern sanitary buildings, containing one, two, three, four and five-room apartments, which the city rents to the tenants at from $3 to $17 a month. The water and gas rates which are paid to the city are merely nominal, and reduce the cost of living to a minimum. There are, all together, over one thousand of these suites of rooms or flats owned by the city and rented at the prices named above, and at the average rate of six persons to the flat there are over six thousand people accommodated in this way. The scheme has been so well managed that the income derived by the city not only covers the interest of the investment, cost of maintenance and all incidental expenses, but there has actually accumulated a sinking fund which is gradually wiping out the debt incurred in the purchase of the condemned property and constructing the new tenements.

Encouraged by the success of this experiment, the city organized a system of relief and benefit for widows and widowers with small families who are obliged to go to their daily labor and have no one in whose care they can leave their children. A large building was erected, containing one hundred and seventy-five bedrooms and a number of nurseries, bathrooms, kitchens and playrooms for the children, and a staff of nurses was engaged to look after the little ones during the entire day. The charges are extremely low, including as they do light, heat, washing, care of the children, etc. The prices are as follows: For a mother and child, 75 cents per week; a mother and two children, 92½ cents; with three children, $1, and 12½ cents for each additional child. For a father and one child, $1.01 a week; father with two children, $1.21 per week; with three children, $1.38 per week, with a charge of 16 cents extra for each additional child. In addition to this, board is provided for adults at 5 cents for breakfast, 8 cents for dinner and 6 cents for supper, or 19 cents per day. Summing up these items, we find that a widow with three children can live comfortably for $3.28 per week, and a man with three children for $3.75.

A further extension of the operations of this laudable system of government is now being carried out, by which the city will be given parliamentary power to expropriate money to provide sanitary dwellings for all the working classes. So excellent is the credit of the city that it is able to borrow all the money that it needs at 2½ per cent, a rate of interest that will go far to make the venture a financial success; and it is reasonably expected that the social and sanitary results will fully compensate the city for the outlay. It may be mentioned here that many years ago the city established public wash houses where, for 1 cents an hour, a woman is allowed the use of hot and cold water washtubs, and may have the washed clothes machine-dried and mangled, all within the hour. It is claimed that of all the vast number of operations of this kind undertaken by the city none has proved a failure; and what this means can be understood when it is said that the authorities have under their care city farms, city markets, dairies, libraries, scientific schools and many other things of like character. Indeed, the city has realized in fifty different ways the reduction of the cost of service to the public which comes from the public ownership of lighting plants, street cars, waterworks, markets and other public utilities. In conclusion it may be said that no clearer tribute to the success of the system can be paid than by the fact that the entire revenue of the city is derived from its public works and institutions, and that the hours of service of the public employes have been shortened and their daily wage increased.

A PROVIDENCE VIEW OF THE STEAMBOAT SERVICE.

The Providence Journal says: The big boats of the Fall River line seem to be appreciated in Providence. The Pilgrim has been on the Providence line since the retirement of the Rhode Island, and now it is reported that the Plymouth may be brought here to take the place of the Pilgrim. The change probably will be made if the Plymouth is not needed on the Fall River route. It has been suggested that running two big boats on the Providence line will do away with the necessity of double service between New York and Fall River, as four boats under this arrangement will take the place of the six previously kept in service during the summer.

INEXCUSABLE DELAY.

Candor compels the admission that the Republicans of the Senate are responsible for the waste of time now going on in that body over the tariff bill. The Democrats and Populists declare themselves ready to vote, and are acting up to their declarations, but the Republicans are dividing and hesitating. They are slow to grapple with the knottiest of their problems. Reciprocity with Hawaii, reciprocity in general, the additional tax on beer and the tax on tea, trusts, and other questions are still held in abeyance. At one caucus recently hides, and watches and watch jewels monopolized attention! If those gentlemen only knew it, the best consideration they could give to time and time-pieces would be to hurry the tariff bill to a vote, and let the country breathe easier.

There is coming a warm time in conference over the bill, and a rumor or two about the matter may be worth a notice. Mr. Aldrich, on account of ill health, has not been able to take any part in the debate on the bill in the Senate. He was so assiduous in the work of the Senate subcommittee which resulted in the mutilation of the work of the House that he overtaxed himself, and his physician ordered him out of town for a rest. He is now about restored, it is understood, and contemplates returning in time to participate in the wind-up and in the conference, with the view, it is said, of stiffening the backbone of the Senate conferees, and, if possible, forcing through conference as much of his work as his coadjutors on the Senate sub-committees have been able to save in his absence.

This is unwelcome news. Everybody will hear with pleasure of his restoration to health and strength, but nobody familiar with the situation, and anxious for its early and satisfactory solution, can wish to see Mr. Aldrich on the scene in active mood at this time. His continued absence until the whole matter has been disposed of would be a blessing to his party and to the country. He has done harm enough, and has earned, and should enjoy, a protracted vacation. It is cool on the seashore of Rhode Island, and for a man whose stomach and equanimity have both recently been upset bracing weather is the thing. A cool reception here would not compensate him for the loss of cool air there, and a warm time in conference might upset him again.—[Washington Star.

CLOTHING.

HISTORY REPEATS ITSELF.
In February '95 we offered a 40 dollar Black Diagonal Suit for 25 dollars. No bigger bargain was ever placed before the buyers of Newport and their appreciation of it was shown by the number of suits sold.
We are now going to repeat that offer. Having just purchased a large quantity of superior English Black Diagonal we will, till further notice, make suits from it for 25 dollars. These suits, as we will make them up, will be equal to suits that only a few years ago we sold for 40 dollars.
We have had many calls for a 25 dollar suit equalling the one we made in '95 for that price, this one fully meets that demand. It will pay you to take advantage of this offer at once.

COME TO STAY.

And Newport Extends a Glad Welcome.

Because it Stops
Sniffing,
Hemming,
Hawking,
Gagging,
Excessive sneezing
And tickling in the throat,
California Catarrh Cure does it.
Sweetens the bad breath,
Cures the pain across the eyes
And in the back of the head,
Stops dropping into the throat,
Cures scabs in the nose,
Keeps the nose always clear,
And absolutely cures the worst cases of chronic catarrh.

California Catarrh Cure has a firm admirer in Mr. J. P. Reagan, 254 Thames street. Mr. Reagan has been greatly benefited by the use of this wonderful medicine, and says: "I had the catarrh so that it was quite troublesome. My head and throat were badly stuffed up in the morning, my eyes troubled me, and I caught cold easily. I got a bottle of California Catarrh Cure at Blumenkranz's Pharmacy, and the results have been very satisfactory. I am now comparatively free from all these troubles, I don't catch cold, my head and throat are free and clear in the morning, and in all ways it has benefited me."

This is what your own townsman says of California Catarrh Cure. Sold by all dealers; 50 cents; three times as much for one dollar. Nothing else is "as good" no matter who says so; for nothing else cures so quickly and effectively.

To avoid Hay Fever, begin to use C. C. C. now; used properly, it will entirely prevent the malady in its season. It is also invaluable in checking and relieving summer colds.

HUNTING THE JAGUAR.

A Royal Sport That is Enjoyed in Venezuela.

The July number of the Century has several articles devoted to the hunting of big game. One of them is "Hunting the Jaguar in Venezuela," written by Mr. William Willard Howard. Mr. Howard describes the method of the native hunters in killing the jaguars with short spears, and relates the following experience of his native guide:

In a moment a great brown-and-yellow beast, spotted and ringed with black, strode leisurely into view, looking upward at the screaming birds. It was the fierce and cruel jaguar, the South American tiger, king of all beasts south of the Isthmus of Darien, and matched in ferocity and courage only by the wounded grizzly bear of North America.

The monstrous creature suddenly paused, with a massive foot lifted from the ground. He had seen the hunter.

Terife was as one turned to stone, a sort of bronze image that might have stood neglected in the wilderness since the days of the Chibchas whom Quesada conquered to found the viceregal state of New Granada.

The tiger's long tail swung slowly from left to right, and from right to left again, while over his yellow face crept a look of mild surprise and inquiry, as though he had asked the meaning of this strange thing which had the figure of flesh and blood and the inscrutable stillness of inanimate rock.

It was splendid courage that this dumb brute did not turn tail and bound away. I know of no other animal that would have stood his ground. Even the grizzly bear, more terrible to meet than the lion of Africa or the monarch of the Bengal jungle, would have growled savagely and retired.

Matchless in his calm courage, the great jaguar put down his uplifted paw and advanced a few steps, half crouching, with lowered head and neck, as a cat creeps upon its prey. Then he paused, swinging his long tail slowly from side to side. Terife stood like a stone, superior in courage even to this remarkable ruler of the forest.

Slowly, cautiously, the tiger came on again, hanging his head and neck low between his shoulders, and never for an instant taking his green and yellow eyes from the strange thing in the path. He was a beautiful creature—wondrously beautiful in his sinewy strength and graceful curves.

As the tiger drew near, a step at a time, his tail swung more rapidly, with a vicious jerk at the end of each swing. Apparently he was giving way to the idea that the strange thing in the path was flesh and blood. Still, he was not quite certain, and he meant to investigate. The Indian had seemingly petrified where he stood. Not even the loose folds of his cotton shirt stirred in the breeze. The birds circled and wheeled for a few moments, and then flew away, caring little for the impending death-grapple, now that their own domestic arrangements were no longer imperiled. Puzzled, undecided, watchful, the tiger walked slowly to the hunter, his green eye searching craftily for some undetected sign of life. When he had come to the end of his uncertain path the yellow monster bent his head and sniffed suspiciously at the Indian's feet.

Like a steel spring the great beast recoiled. The strange, still thing was flesh and blood.

A step at a time—alert, wary, fierce—he withdrew his massive paws, measuring the distance with the savage instinct of the forest. The Indian made no sign.

Then the tiger crouched in the path; his giant muscles quivered in tense knots, his red tongue curled stiffly between his keen fangs, his tail thrashed viciously, and his spotted skin moved in bristling waves of anger, as a quick squall races across standing grain.

In an instant all would be over; a lonely tragedy far away in the South American wilderness—a tragedy for beast, or a tragedy for man.

The tiger gathered himself for the spring, his sinewy length all a-tremble; but just as his bunched muscles were quivering with the first impulse of upward motion, the hunter came back to life. Terife snatched the loose handkerchief from his neck, and cast it full in the tiger's face. In an ecstasy of surprise the beast threw up his head and shoulders, and pawed insanely at the cloth. In the catching of a breath Terife aimed the upraised spear at the rounded yellow throat, and drove it home.

Tiger and spear rolled in the dust together, the blood spurting over the spear-shaft and staining the narrow trail. The king of the Cordilleras was conquered. He died as he had lived, fierce, cruel, savage, with no abatement of his splendid courage.

EV'RY MONTH FOR JULY.

Ev'ry Month for July contains two excellent articles, appropriate to Independence day, one on "The Ingenuity of Fireworks" and the other on women officers of the Daughters of the American Revolution. The illustrations to the fireworks are specially drawn from the gorgeous pyrotechnic displays of the Pain company, and are about as fine illustrations of sputtering wheels and rockets as could be put on paper. The remaining contents of this excellent number include articles on "Indoor Photography," "Women in the Maine Woods," "F. A. Bicknell's Picturesque Studio," "American Women Composers" and four pieces of new music, the titles of which are: "Yes, I Love You," by R. M. Stults, arranged for mandolin and guitar by W. J. Kitchener; "Our Own Native Land," patriotic song, by Herman Perlet; "Forgotten Fancies," gavotte, by Charles Miller, and "Far From the Old Folks at Home," song and chorus, by M. J. Fitzpatrick. Jenk's literary notes, the several short stories and the editorials are interesting. There are fifty illustrations in all.

NEW SEA RULES.

The new rules of the road at sea, which went into effect the past week, contain some novelties worthy of special note. The first of these which will strike the maritime observer is the provision that a steam vessel "under way may carry an additional white light." This additional light must be abaft the steamer's headlight, and at least fifteen feet higher than it. This additional light will act as a range light in combination with the one in the head rigging. In the case of a vessel coming head on toward an observer, he would see the white lights above one another. If the approaching vessel shifted her helm even so little as a quarter point, the opening of the range lights would reveal the fact and would also show in which direction the alteration of the course had been made.

The peculiarity of this provision of the new rules is that it is not compulsory. It should have been so, for every person at all conversant with sea life knows that advantage of the optional nature of the clause will be taken by the very captains whose lumbering craft most need to have illumination thrown on their dark and devious ways. The increase of the distance between the lights carried aft by steamers engaged in towing is good, and better still is the requirement that they shall show an additional white light if towing more than one vessel at a length of six hundred feet astern. This is necessary to prevent other vessels from trying to cross the wake of the towing steamer too close astern, thereby causing collision with her tow. The requirement that steam vessels of less than forty tons shall carry a white headlight nine feet above the gunwale and side lights, or a combination green and red light six feet above the gunwale and visible one mile, is admirable, and the command that rowboats, under oars or sail, must show a white light to other vessels approaching is equally so. Something severe ought to be done to any man who is so reckless as to go in a small boat at night without a light to show.

Another excellent addition is the rule requiring vessels of over 150 feet in length to carry a stern light while at anchor. The old riding light of a ship 200 or 300 feet long was a poor guide to steer by on a dark night. The rules also accord permission to vessels in danger of collision to use a flare-up or detonating signal. Yachtsmen, who have a wholesome fear of Sound steamers, sometimes burn red fire when they hear paddles. Perhaps ocean travelers will be most delighted with the rule which commands steamers in a fog to stop when they hear the whistle of another ship ahead. The theory that the ship which is going fastest through a fog runs the shortest risk has never appealed forcibly to landsmen.

These new rules of the road are worthy of the study of every person who travels frequently by water. There is no mystery about the manner in which vessels are required to pass one another on the water, and the rules would be broken or neglected less frequently if travelers knew more about them and were more competent to appear on the witness stand. About 95 per cent of the world's commerce is governed by these rules. Turkey, Venezuela, Costa Rica, Nicaragua and Zanzibar have not subscribed to them, but Venezuela will probably do so soon. The vessels of the other four countries will probably do their best to keep out of the way.—[New York Times.

A CYCLING COSTUME.

A striking bicycle costume is of pongee-colored drap d'ete, made in the severe style of a perfectly-fitting waist, which fastens with hooks in the centre front. Black braid is used to finish the edges, and also as a trimming in a plain, conventional design.

The skirt is fastened at the left side of the back under one of the box-plaits, two of which dispose of the fullness. This same model serves for cycling costumes of linen and heavy cotton fabrics. A flax-colored linen braided with white would be very effective for summer. A blue and white duck with either blue or white braid is serviceable and stylish.

The skirt, to give satisfaction, must be deeply faced with the same fabric. This gives the necessary weight to keep the skirt from being raised by the wind.

The hat shown is of black straw, with rosettes of pongee-colored ribbon set on both sides. A frill of the ribbon joins them. A black aigrette is set on the left side.

FORECASTING THE PROGRESS OF INVENTION.

There is another direction in which the airship would be seriously defective, and this is almost overlooked, and that is in the matter of making landings. Being a large body, it would necessarily be unwieldy, and its motion in any direction could not be arrested in a very short space of time; therefore it could not make a landing within a limited area. In a dead calm it could probably be landed in nearly a vertical line, and thus make a landing in a contracted space, but if the wind were blowing even at a moderate velocity the case would be different. As the wind is always blowing more or less, and as it frequently changes its course in a few seconds, the ship would be tossed about quite livelily before it reached the ground. If it came down at the rate of three hundred feet per minute, which is a high velocity, and the wind were blowing at the rate of ten miles per hour, the side drift would be three times as great as the vertical descent; and if this were counteracted by imparting a velocity to the ship equal to that of the wind and opposed to it, the side draught would be doubled if the direction of the wind should suddenly reverse. It must therefore be evident that to be able to make a landing safely, without running the risk of colliding with church steeples and modern sky-scrapers, it would be necessary to have a large open space.—[William Baxter, Jr., in Appletons' Popular Science Monthly for July.

How They Bat and Field.

Since June 20, to July 1, the Newports have played eight games, winning six, three from Fall River, two from Brockton and one from New Bedford, and losing two, to Pawtucket. The three defeats of Brockton have pushed that team from first place and put Newport again on top, by a narrow margin, but that is all the leader has ever had. The team has batted well and shows an improvement in fielding, even when the opponents are batting hard. The nine had played 47 games, of which 31 were won, 15 lost and 1 tied; it had one postponed game, with Pawtucket. As 110 games comprise the full schedule, it can be seen that the season is nearly half over. The individual records to July 1 are as follows:

Batting.

	games	a.b.	r.	1b.	av.
Mills,	14	53	7	18	.340
Bean,	39	155	25	52	.335
Stephenson,	40	160	35	53	.331
Pickett,	39	155	33	51	.329
Hawley,	24	84	18	27	.321
Crisham,	47	188	32	56	.299
Kelley,	47	200	42	54	.270
Gilbert,	47	195	35	51	.262
Foley,	13	40	4	10	.250
Gallagher,	15	57	8	14	.246
Dinsmore,	47	157	17	30	.185

Fielding.

	p.o.	a.	e.	av.
Kelley,	452	34	9	.982
Mills,	32	49	3	.959
Crisham,	125	10	14	.914
Gilbert,	132	10	9	.940
Foley,	6	22	2	.933
Gallagher,	10	40	4	.926
Pickett,	79	3	7	.921
Hawley,	33	34	6	.918
Bean,	79	151	29	.885
Dinsmore,	55	91	21	.871
Stephenson,	61	6	10	.870

In batting the two leaders have fallen away since June 20, when the last figures were given, Mills dropping 51 points and Bean 15, but both still hold the lead. Stephenson has gained 3 points, Pickett 27, passing Hawley and Crisham; Hawley 28, passing Crisham, while the latter has gained 15 points. All these have hit above the 299 mark. The order of the others has not changed, and except for Foley and Gallagher the average is practically the same. Foley gained 24 points and Gallagher 29. Grant is not included in these figures as he played only in a part of one game and his record is practically unchanged.

In fielding, Kelley and Mills again lead, but with slightly lower averages, each falling off 6 points. Crisham has picked up 7 points, and is third; Gilbert has also passed Foley, but has fallen off 6 points. Foley, by making just one error, has fallen off 28 points and dropped from third to fifth. Gallagher has struggled through five games without an error, gained 24 points and moved up from third last place. Pickett has improved 18 points and passed Hawley, who has gained 8 points. Bean has bettered his average 6 and Dinsmore 5 points. Stephenson managed to double his previous record for errors, and has dropped to last place, falling off 61 points.

Notes.

Monday morning Newport plays in Pawtucket, and the two clubs will play here in the afternoon. Tuesday New Bedford plays here.

Augusta has disbanded, leaving but four clubs in the Maine league, and these may not last longer than next week. Poor weather is the main cause.

Lipp, a Pennsylvania pitcher, has been signed by Fall River.

The Fall River Globe thinks McManus can hold his own with Crisham. Mac is certainly playing a very good game, and, like Crisham, is doing so in a gentlemanly manner and without any blowing of trumpets.

Cincinnati has cancelled the games arranged for this city September 3 and New Bedford September 7, as the team has so many postponed games that it cannot play exhibitions.

"Tommy McCarthy, the old Boston player, intends starting on a still hunt for material in the New England league. Sheckard of Brockton and Crisham of Newport are two men on whom he will cast a critical eye. The former is an all-round ball player from the drop of the flag, and as a batter is a wonder, while Crisham is sure to be found in faster company before many moons. An exchange says Crisham always meets the ball squarely. He never swings clear around if he does not connect with the ball, but has control all the time."—[Boston Herald.

Boston has secured the release of Fred Lake, formerly with Boston, from Kansas City, and will not now need Crisham.

Stephenson has reported that he is not feeling well and would like to lay off for a week to recuperate; if he does, Grant will play right. Regarding right field, it might be said that the color of the grand stand and fence, put on by the Horse Show people, makes it very difficult and at times impossible for the fielder to see ground balls. A little dark paint, properly applied, would probably help out the right fielder, who has some difficult balls to handle.

John Nugent, who started the season here, is playing fast ball on third for Cortland, N. Y. He appears to have regained his health.

Waldron is playing with St. Paul of the Western league.

Pitcher Horner, who was injured Thursday by a batted ball that struck him in the face, is all right again.

In view of the fact that there is to be no Horse Show this year, and the base ball association had the week set aside for the show without a game in town, Manager Finn has arranged to play the New Bedfords here August 26 and the Pawtuckets August 23. The game scheduled with New Bedford July 9 at Newport will be played instead at New Bedford.

There seems to be some doubt about what Dowd is to do this year. It has been expected that he was coming to Newport, but he has lately said he would not play ball in the league, and perhaps not at all after July 5. As this would greatly affect the plans of the local club, the management has been doing what it could to induce him to change his plans, if he has any plans.

National League games yesterday—Baltimore, 6; Washington, 4. Louisville, 1; Cincinnati, 1. Chicago, 7; Pittsburg, 4. Cleveland, 13; St. Louis, 1. The New York-Boston and Philadelphia-Brooklyn games were postponed on account of the rain.

Eastern League games—Providence, 10; Wilkesbarre, 6. Scranton, 6; Springfield, 5. Syracuse, 5; Rochester, 2. Toronto, 6; Buffalo, 2.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. BURYING THE WIRES.

The work of laying the telephone conduits on Spring street has been completed, leaving of the main lines only two short sections to be built across Thames street at Marlboro, and across Bellevue avenue to connect Bath road with William street. These will not be touched until the street commissioner decides that the work can be done without unnecessary interference with travel. In the meantime the telephone men will be kept busy putting in laterals, erecting the necessary poles near the terminals, and putting cables in the conduits. This work will take a long time.

ANDREWS AND BROWN.

Phases of the Differences Between the President and the Corporation.

[Special correspondence of the News.]

PROVIDENCE, July 2.—The controversy over President Andrews of Brown University presents an interesting situation and possesses some curious phases. The college under President Andrews's administration has developed with almost amazing rapidity and to a really extraordinary degree, and yet it has during that time made practically no advance in a financial way. The result is that it is compelled to do many times the amount of work it did before, with practically the same amount of pecuniary resources. This is the difficulty which presents itself to the corporation, and this it is which brought about the recent action by that body with reference to President Andrews.

This failure to receive contributions for the college is attributed to President Andrews's well known views with regard to economics and the silver question, the assertion being made that because those views are held by the head of the university the manufacturers of the state are unwilling to contribute of their means for the further endowment of the college. It is not evident, however, that these manufacturers are longing for an opportunity to bestow their wealth upon the institution, nor has it been definitely stated that any one of them has ready a sum of money to give to the university if a change should be made in the president of the college, or that the university has lost any fund because of the objectionable views of that official regarding monetary matters. Not only is this true, but it is quite certain that some of the manufacturers whose names have been mentioned in this connection have not, and will never have, any intention of bestowing even a small portion of their wealth upon Brown University, or any other college, and so far as these particular people are concerned, it is quite reasonable to believe that their connection with this controversy is more political than educational.

Under these circumstances, and until it is more certain that the college would benefit financially by a change of administration, it is the opinion of not a few friends of the institution that it would be much wiser not to imperil the further development of the college educationally by a change in the head of the institution for fear of an imaginary danger or to secure an imaginary good. If some of the wealthy manufacturers of the state should make specific offers of large sums of money provided the president of the college were a man who held different opinions upon economical and monetary questions from those entertained by President Andrews, the question with reference to the advisability of a change of presidents would be a serious one, but just now there seems to be little reason for so great a stir over opinions which were held by the present head of the college when he was placed in that position and have been maintained by him for a dozen years, especially in view of the fact that there is lacking definite knowledge that the holding of those views by him has kept from the college a single cent of the wealth of the manufacturers of the state.

MIDDLETOWN.

[Regular correspondence of the News.]

Miss Georgiana Ray has as guests her sister and the latter's children, from Brookline, Mass.

Mrs. John Young was guest of Mrs. Wayland Smith yesterday.

The public schools closed yesterday, some giving picnics and others holding special exercises. The summer vacation will last until the first Monday in September.

Miss Mary Chase, teacher in the Oliphant district, with her pupils, had their school picnic in Lawton's valley.

At the recent exhibition of the School of Drawing and Painting, Museum of Fine Arts, Boston, Miss Louisa Sturtevant was awarded the first prize in decoration and Miss Helena Sturtevant received honorable mention in painting—the next highest award to the Sears prize.

ANOTHER PETITION FROM MRS. ROSS.

A special despatch to the Boston Globe says: Mrs. A. E. Webster Ross yesterday afternoon filed a petition in the supreme court asking for the issuance of an order to the Kings, commanding them to produce a marble bust of William H. King, it now being in the possession of Mary Augusta King, widow of Edward King. Mrs. King testified before Commissioner Callaghan, a fortnight ago, that the deceased multi-millionaire left it in her possession. Mrs. Ross proposes to secure the depositions of several people who knew her uncle, and desires to have a photograph of the bust to show them.

The bust was made by Hiram Powers, the famous sculptor of Florence, Italy, when William H. King was there. Powers said it was the finest head and shoulders that he had ever made. Mrs. King was asked by Mrs. Ross's counsel to produce the bust, but she refused not only to do so, but even to allow them to go to her house and take a photograph of it.

MONDAY'S ROWING RACE.

It looks as though there would be some fun over the rowing race arranged for Monday morning. As already announced, the Torpedo Station men have turned a ten-oared boat into one of twelve, which they say is according to the agreement made by the coxswains of the crews. Now some persons say that if this small boat races it will go over the course alone and take the cup, and then the other crews will have a race. Such action would be anything but sportsmanlike, or courteous to Mr. Garrettson, who offers the prize. If the Station boat is allowed to race it will be because the proper officials consider that it is according to the agreement, and, if it is, all the others are bound in honor to race the best they can. The coxswains are to meet tomorrow to arrange for setting the buoys, and the difficulty may then be adjusted.

BIDS FOR STRENGTHENING FORT GREENE.

Last evening the City Council committee on streets and highways met and opened bids for building a battress wall around the base of Fort Greene, to protect it from the action of the water. The wall is to be about 110 feet long by 4 high, of Rocky Farm stone laid in Portland cement. The bids were: O'Connor & Kennealey, $5.00 per cord; Radford & Booth, $5.49; Wilcox & Daly, $7.44; Peter Knowe, $7; Beaman & Lewis, $6.29; M. F. Murphy, $6.10; Friend & Maguire, $5.40. The contract will be awarded to the last named.

The bids for filling in the excavated portion of the harbor esplanade and making a beach outside the present dam were not satisfactory, and the street commissioner was authorized to ask for other proposals. This calls for about 65,000 yards of filling.
